PREFACE

The Michigan Manual is published biennially by the Legislative Service Bureau, under the direction of the Legislative Council, pursuant to Act 44 of 1899, as amended, being MCL §24.1 et seq. of the Michigan Compiled Laws. As the state's official manual, it includes fundamental reference information about Michigan — its history, constitutional development, government organization, and institutions. The contents of the book, which are specified in section 25 of the authorizing legislation (MCL §24.25), are divided into the following ten chapters: Michigan History; Michigan's Constitutions; The Legislative Branch; The Executive Branch; The Judicial Branch; Michigan's Congressional Delegation; Institutions of Higher Education; Local Government; Elections; and General Information/Statistics. The whole body of information presented in these chapters is made available by a detailed Table of Contents, General Index, and Index to Names.

The 2005 edition of this book includes a wealth of updated material, including the biographies of legislators and many other public officials, descriptions of the agencies of the executive branch and the courts, the amendments to the state's constitution made by the two successful November 2004 ballot proposals, and the primary and general election results. All state departments, lists of county officers, and university profiles have been reviewed and revised.

An electronic edition of the Michigan Manual is available through the "Publications" link located on the Michigan Legislature's website, www.legislature.mi.gov.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Any project of the size and scope of the Michigan Manual can be brought to completion only as a result of the cooperation and hard work of many people.

The following staff members of the Legislative Service Bureau's Research Services Division deserve recognition for contributions made to the 2005-2006 edition: Leo Kennedy, Terry Bergstrom, Linda Hess, Tammye Barrett, and Loanna Ammerman provided invaluable assistance at various stages of the project. The Senate, House, and Congressional district maps were prepared by Robert G. Karr, GIS Operator, a former member of the Bureau staff. The LSB Legal Division's Sandra Hearns and Lorraine Lucas contributed their considerable proofreading skills to this effort.

In the Bureau's Legislative Printing Division, Christopher Powers, Director of Legislative Printing, coordinated all printing and binding operations; Rosemary Thomas managed typographical and proofreading operations; Sandra Debnar designed the Profile of Michigan section; Patricia Romain-Denney and Larry Sibiski served as typesetters, Mary Kennedy and Randy Miller as compositors, and Sue Kellogg and Sandra Debnar as proofreaders; Dan Reid supervised printing and bindery functions; Rick Shue, John Marshall, and Edward Pokojski served as pressmen; and Scott Allen, Kathy Shanks, Elias Estrada, and Brian Rennaker served as bookbinders.

Several people from other offices throughout state government contributed through their work in gathering and compiling information on their various agencies. Margie Boerner of the State Court Administrative Office deserves recognition for her work in coordinating the assembly of new information for the Judicial Branch chapter.

Lastly, we wish to acknowledge the role that Roger W. Peters played in revamping the Michigan Manual during his tenure as its editor. Beginning with the 1989-1990 edition and until the 2003-2004 publication, he brought many innovations to the "Red Book." His commitment continues to influence this project.

HISTORICAL NOTE

Compiling information on government, public institutions, elections, and officials in the Michigan Manual is a tradition as old as Michigan itself, dating back to the Michigan Territory's organization as a state and the formation of the first constitution in 1835. First published in 1836 as a manual entitled Legislative Manual of the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, the Michigan Manual has evolved, over the last 170 years, into one of the most important sources of information on this state and its historical, political, and cultural background.

Originally developed as an information handbook for members of the Michigan Legislature, the early manuals included such legislative data as the rules of the Senate and House of Representatives, joint rules, membership lists, and orders of business. The first manual to provide information not strictly related to the conduct of legislative business was published in 1839. That book included data on banking associations and bank returns, judicial circuits, miscellaneous incorporations, the state militia, and tolls on the Central Railroad. With each subsequent edition, the amount of nonlegislative information increased, reflecting the needs of the legislature and the new state government for readily available data.

Act 263 of 1879 first specified the contents of the Michigan Manual. It required that legislative material and other information which had previously been published only sporadically be included in the publication. Since that time, the basic contents of the manual have remained relatively unchanged.

Commonly called the "Red Book" (which has been the color of its cover since the 1836 publication), the manual has undergone several changes in both its title and publisher. From 1836 through 1883, the title retained, in one form or another, its reference as a manual for the use of the Michigan Legislature. Act 263 of 1879, the first legislation to mandate publication of the handbook, specifically authorized the Secretary of State to prepare and publish a biennial legislative manual. Recognition in its title of the manual's value and scope as a reference work came in 1885, with the title's change to Official Directory and Legislative Manual of the State of Michigan. The Law, Documents and Reports Act, Act 44 of 1899, made that title (which was retained through the 1957 edition) official. Act 161 of 1958 renamed the handbook the Michigan Manual. Printed yearly from 1836 to 1851, the manual has been published on a biennial basis since the adoption of the Constitution of 1850. The Michigan Legislature, by authority or resolution, published the document from 1836 to 1879. Act 263 of 1879 transferred publication authority to the Secretary of State, where it remained from 1881 to 1967. The Department of Administration and its successor agency, the Department of Management and Budget, maintained responsibility for compiling and publishing the manual from 1969 to 1987.

On June 22, 1988, the legislature enacted, and the governor approved, legislation (Act 185 of 1988) that returned responsibility for producing the Michigan Manual to the legislature. Since that time, the Legislative Service Bureau, under the direction of the Legislative Council, has published the book.
